EARLY MOLTING OF CHICKENS

Western Poultryman Gives Excellent Method of Controlling Hens in Changing Feathers.

Most people believe that if they can force their hens to molt early they will lay more eggs during the season, but this is not true. Hens that have molted late will lay more eggs during the winter than the early molters.

This has been shown by the most careful experiments, but the facts are not generally known.

Molting hens require a large amount of feed containing nitrogen such as oil meal, meat and other feeds rich in protein. Molting can be forced by cutting down the feed of hens as it has been shown by experiments that scantly fed hens begin molting earlier than those on full feed, but the former do not finish molting much earlier.

Starved hens molt more uniformly than others and this is particularly noticeable in hens two or three years old.

In an experiment conducted by the Cornell experiment station it was found that on a basis of 100 hens the fed flock produced eggs to the value of $29.97 more than by the starved flock.

The total income from all the birds was $278 for the starved flock and $560 for the fed flock, a difference in favor of natural molting for the year of about $95.

A western poultryman of long experience gives his method of controlling molting as follows:

As soon as the hens are through laying he turns them out on alfalfa, feeding them dry bran only, in addition. Under this treatment they get thin. Then he feeds them a mixed ration of grains and meat, giving a light feed in the morning and all they will eat at noon and night. Under this treatment they finish molting quickly, get new feathers and begin laying in September. By October 1 they are all in good laying condition and make a profit through the fall and winter.

PLYMOUTH ROCK IS POPULAR

Stock Chute Makes Them Excellent Breed for Breeding Hens—Much Preferred as Utility Fowl.

The Barred Plymouth Rock is without a doubt the most popular breed of chickens in this country—more of them are found on the farms than any other breed. On special poultry farms the Leghorn is a very popular breed, and in the poultry farming districts the Rhode Island Reds are almost exclusively used, says a writer in the Rural New Yorker. As a general utility fowl the Wyandottes are second in popularity to the Rocks, the white variety being the most popular.

Their blocky shape makes them an excellent breed for broilers. Like the Plymouth Rocks and Rhode Island Reds, they lay a brown egg. The Leghorns lay a white egg, and in this respect they have a slight advantage, as most markets prefer the white egg, though there is no difference in the qualities of eggs with a brown or a white shell.

Overcrowding ducklings will induce feather-pulling.

Kerosene is sure death to fowls, if applied as a spray.

Hens suffer from overeating as much as from starving.

If you're provoking to have hens steal their nests this time of the year.

The feeding of onions to laying hens has produced an onion flavor in eggs. A hen egg-bound will be seen to visit the nest repeatedly without result.

Fodder corn makes fine green food for poultry of all ages. Try it fed green.

Many will realize this fall and winter that the early-hatched chick is the winter layer.

It is not advisable to allow ducklings bathing water before the weather is warm and pleasant.

Market at once all males not kept for breeders, and all pullets that have not kept pace with the rest of the flock.

CLOVER MIXTURE FOR SWINE

Combination of Alfalfa With Either Common Red or Mammoth Given Good Results.

By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.

A mixture of alfalfa with either the common red or the mammoth clover will give more and better pasture than any one of them. The value of the pasture depends on the number of leaves rather than on the stems. The per cent of the leaves is greater in alfalfa than in the medium and the medium has a larger per cent of leaves than has the mammoth, when compared with the stem. This alfalfa is finer in stem, too, and renewa leafy growth after eaten down better than the ranker clovers. It pays to sow about ten pounds of medium and five pounds of alfalfa to each acre.

I have noticed that shoats prefer alfalfa to any of these clovers. This suggests that they would enjoy a mixture of clover including alfalfa. As it is less hardy at the start it might be well to defer sowing the alfalfa until the season of severe frost has passed.

Once established, alfalfa will endure much hardship as any of the clovers named, yet none of them will endure grazing when frozen or even when covered with frost. A little care to keep frost off until the frost has disappeared will prolong the use of the clover pasture. Delay in turning on in the spring until May will be profitable.

STOCK CHUTE QUITE USEFUL

Convenient Farm Implement Easily Moved by Addition of Two Discarded Mower Wheels.

Perhaps every farmer has occasion to load some animal into a wagon and many of them prepare for this by building a stock chute. Frequently these chutes are built as a permanent fixture in connection with the feed lots, but they are often made so that they can be transported from one part of the farm to another. When a chute of this kind is built heavy and strong enough to support the weight of a mature hog or a large calf it becomes a clumsy thing to move.

Mr. J. Linscott, owner of the Roslyn Jerseys at Holton, Kan., has solved this problem of inconvenience in a very easy way. The wheels and axle used in making his stock chute are parts of old machinery found on the farm, the wheels being taken from an old mower. The upper end of the chute is provided with two strong iron hooks, which are sharpened so as to engage the bottom of the wagon bed and prevent slipping after the animal starts upward. With such an arrangement there is no difficulty in building a chute of ample strength because the question of weight has relatively little importance. The chute can be hooked on behind the wagon and hauled to any part of the farm.

Giving the Horse Salt. It is a mistake to deprive a horse of salt. Large lumps of rock salt should always be kept in a box in a corner of the manger, where the horse can help himself.

Lice on Horses. For lice on horses use a good louse powder generously wherever lice appear, and blanket closely for 12 to 15 hours. This kills most of them. Repeat if necessary.

Stock Chute on Wheels.

all means from the boy with the sling shot or air gun and from prouting cats.

It has been estimated that the birds in the United States save $200,000,000 worth of crops each year. The tree sparrows in Iowa eat 4,666 pounds of seed daily. One fully-fledged robin will eat sixteen feet of caterpillar daily, or about 4,560 individuals a month.

However, in spite of the persistence of the birds, the apple worm in Illinois destroys $2,375,000 worth of fruit each year. The potato bug damages potatoes in Massachusetts to the value of $75,000. The chinch bug annually damages crops in the United States to the amount of $5,000,000. Insects generally destroy $800,000,000 worth of crops in this country each year.

Let us protect the birds if for no other reason than for the welfare of the crops. The insect ravages once checked perhaps the high cost of living may be somewhat reduced.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Binds on the nervous horse are as useful added to fire.

Have the ewes in good flesh condition at mating time.

Oats should be made a part of the diet of the growing colt.

Sheats are certainly an attractive proposition at public sales.

Stick to the "golden hoof" and turn farm wastes into manure.

Exposure to chill and rain is detrimental to any ailing dumb animal.

At this time of year considerable attention should be given to the manures.

A windmill is a necessity on every stock farm where there is not fresh running water.

Good horses and mules were never higher in American history than they are at the present time.

The stables, which will soon be occupied by the live stock, should be made comfortable for them.

The man who gets the cost of production down to the minimum is the man who makes the money.

A blanket of fat on a horse, like charity, is a mantle that often serves to cover a multitude of defects.

Experienced shepherds usually make a practice of flushing out the ewes just before breeding time.

A coat of whitewash on the inside of the barn and other outbuildings will make them lighter and cleaner.

How to shear and finish hogs for market is a science, a knowledge of which is of great value to hog raisers.

Hog cholera, or disease resembling hog cholera, is reported breaking out in many different parts of the country.

HOW BIRDS PROTECT FARMER

Estimated Little Songsters Save $200,000,000 Worth of Crops Yearly by Killing Insects.

Large numbers of our most beautiful and beneficial birds may be seen during the month of October lingering with us for a while on their way to the south. Hermit and gray-cheeked thrushes, white-throated sparrow, dickcissels, brown creepers, kinglets, warblers, blue birds and others, all of which as a rule inhabit more secluded places, may be found among the shade trees and shrubbery of the city says a writer in the Chicago News. It will be found upon investigation that they are vigilantly searching for insects most of which are injurious. These birds should be protected by enriching their soil.

BEE-KEEPING FOR A FARMER

Agricultural Property Will Make Equal Returns for Trouble Caused by Honey Insects.

A great many farmers seem to think that honey bees are not worth anything, but still they value what they make very highly. Every one of them would be glad to have honey on his table all the time. If they would just take a little extra time and labor they could have all they wanted.

Just have a few hives in the back yard, and you will have all the honey you want for your own use. If you have not any money to spend with bees, why not let your wife or the children have a few colonies?

Bee-keeping is a light, pleasant outdoor work. Considering the time required and money spent, there is nothing that will net the owner any more than the keeping of bees.

As high as ten dollars' worth of honey has been gathered by a single swarm of bees; but generally they gather about two dollars' worth in one season.

Many people would keep bees if it were not for their stings. A bee-keeper does not get stung often—he would not any more think of getting stung in picking up a handful of bees than would be in picking up a downy little chick.

Honey is a good food for the sick and well, old and young. It can be used in a great many ways in the kitchen in preparing things for the table.

TO HITCH A CORNSTALK POLE

With Fastening of Chain Near End of Each Double-Tree Considerable Trouble is Obligated.

Hooking a stalk pole by fastening a long chain from notches to cleavers in the center of the double tree, often causes a lot of trouble by the ends parties.

Locating the Apiary.

In starting an apiary the first thing to be considered is the selection of a suitable location for the hives.

This should be in some open or nearly open place where there will be no overhanging branches from trees to interfere with the operation of the apriatist, convenient to some building to be used as a shop for preparing and storing hives and apparatus, and near enough to the house to be easily watched in swarming time, and, above all, in a place sufficiently level to make it easy to get around the hives and keep the grass mowed about and around them.

Buying Bees.

Bees may be bought at this season very cheaply and, if you are a good judge of colonies, they may be bought and moved a few miles in a spring wagon if handled very carefully. But it is next to impossible to ship hives and bees by railroads at this time of year.

Anyone contemplating buying had better contract now and ship in early spring after the most of the honey has been consumed, and the combs toughened

by age.

Disinfection of the House.

After every case of infectious disease, it is well to disinfect the sick room thoroughly. It is not always necessary to do so, for the infective agent of most infections or contagious diseases does not live long outside of the body. If you air the room thoroughly, boil the patient's clothing, bedclothing, towels, etc., and so forth, and expose such things as cannot be boiled to the bright sunlight for two or three days in succession, you will generally guard sufficiently against further infection. Nevertheless, it is better to disinfect the room, especially if the case has been one of chronic disease, such as consumption.

There are many ways of disinfecting a room; the simplest, the cheapest and the most effectual is as follows:

First, sprinkle all the things that can be washed—bedclothing, body-clothing, handkerchiefs, towels, and so forth—with a ten per cent. solution of carbolic acid; then carry them to the laundry and boil them for an hour. After you have dried them thoroughly in the sun, you can be sure that they contain no infection.

Next, lay books or rugs—curtains or pictures on tables and chairs (the books with the leaves spread open as much as possible, and the rugs and curtains without fold or crease), and then shut all the windows and doors. Put an ordinary teakettle on a table in the hall, just outside the door of the room; boil in it a quantity of formalin (a forty-per-cent. solution of formaldehyde), and admit the vapor into the room by means of a tube attached to the nose of the kettle and passed through the keyhole. The proper amount of formalin to use is ten ounces for every thousand cubic feet of air-space in the room. After the formalin has boiled away, leave the room undisturbed for twenty-four hours. Then open wide the windows and air the room for twenty-four hours more.

If any formalin fumes remain after the room is opened, you can dissipate them by spraying with spirits of ammonia. If you were careful to open wide every closet door and every drawer in bureau or dressing table or wash stand, and if the rugs and curtains have been exposed without folds to the formalin fumes, you can be sure that the room is absolutely disinfected.

CURIOS BITS OF HISTORY

JEFFERSON'S MOUNTAIN OF SALT.

By A. W. MACY.

While President Jefferson was negotiating with France for the purchase of Louisiana Territory he transmitted to Congress one very remarkable document. It was an abstract he had prepared of certain papers relating to the territory, and pictured the country in the most glowing colors. It told of a tribe of Indians of gigantic stature; of bluffs 300 feet high, faced with stone and carved by nature into what appeared like a multitude of antique towers; of a vast prairie country whose soil was too rich for the growth of trees. But most marvelous of all was an immense mountain of pure salt. This was said to be located about 1,000 miles north of New Orleans and near the Mississippi river, and to be 180 miles long and 45 miles wide, with no trees or shrubs on it. All glittering white it stood, and from its base issued great streams of pure salt water. Jefferson had been misled by the fairy tales of travelers. His political opponents had had fun with him in after years about his "salt mountain."

The stomach trouble soon disappeared and now I eat heartily and have perfect digestion. I wish every tired, weak, nervous woman could have Vinol, for I never spent any money in my life that did me so much good as that I spent for Vinol." Marie Richter, Detroit, Mich.

Thousands of women and men who were formerly weak and sickly owe their present strength to the wonderful strengthening effect of Vinol. We guarantee Vinol to build you up and make you strong. It does not, we give back your money.

A THOUGHT FOR THE NEW YEAR.

Oh take me not into the realms of Yesterday.
For I am tired and wearied of the Backward Road
Which ever leads through marshes foul and dank from rains
Of long ago still held within the murky slime.
Nor in Tomorrow's land, Oh take me not,
I pray.
It's aisles are sheltered by the stately trees
of Hope Whose fragrant blossoms, would-be fruit ever shrink and die
Before the harvest time that should be buds mature.
Content them with Today's fair land, Oh
let me be;
It's scenes are all that mortal eye need long to view.
It's realms are all that mortal feet need want to tread,
Nor seek to go the Backward or the Forward Road.

Winter Term Convenes Here Monday, and Is Swinging Along.

Muhlenberg circuit court was started on its three week winter term at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon, when Hon. W. P. Court attendance has been rather light on the beginning, as no cases of importance have drawn witnesses and spectators in large numbers. To The Public.

We desire to announce to the public that our new mill is now in full operation, and we will at all times have on hand the very finest quality of flour, meal and feed. We are very anxious to do custom grinding for our friends, and can give them the very best flour and wheat that is to be had anywhere, in exchange for their corn and wheat.

Parcels Post Does Overwhelming Business.

Reports from all over the country for the first week of the parcels post service show that more than 750,000 packages were handled in that time. If this business grows in the same proportions that other new ventures increase, it will not be long until the express package will be a dim recollection. The government has every advantage in this matter, as it already has help to handle the business, and reaches thousands of points that the express people cannot touch, every post office being open for the dispatch and receipt of packages. There are glaring defects in the parcels post law as now framed, but these will all be eliminated, and the service improved, as time goes along.

Aunt Mahala Eaves Dies.

Aunt Mahala Eaves, one of the best known of the old colored residents of the city, died at her home at 9:15 o'clock last Friday morning, from chronic bronchitis, which for some months had kept her confined to her bed. Deceased was in her 85th year, and had always lived in Greenville; she was an industrious, faithful woman, and had been employed in many of the best homes of the city, and has had the care of scores of children, who have grown to manhood and womanhood, and who have always had the deepest respect and affection for her. Rev.

E. H. Emerson, pastor of Wesley Chapel A. M. E. Zion church, conducted the funeral service at the home at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and the body was carried to the family lot in the old cemetery, near by, and laid to rest.

The LaMecade Opera House next Thursday night will have an attraction by local talent, when "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" will be given.

Mr. J. S. Miller left the latter part of the week for Florida, where he will spend several weeks. He will be joined there by Mr. John A. Williams, of Lexington, and together they intend to tour the state pretty thoroughly.

Mr. J. H. Pittman was in Louisville last week, and Friday brought his daughter, Miss Leah Carr, home. She has been at Norton Infirmary for some weeks, under the care of specialists for heart trouble, and is much improved.

Death of Mrs. T. F. Drake.

Mrs. Cornelia Caroline Drake, wife of Mr. T. F. Drake, died at their home on College street at 6 o'clock, Wednesday evening, January 8, from a complication of troubles from which she has been a sufferer for two years, and for some weeks had confined her to the bed. For some days it had been realized that her case was hopeless, as no relief could be provided. Deceased was in her 53rd year, and had lived in this county since her marriage in 1877. She was a woman of most excellent characteristics, and was held in high regard by all who knew her, and in her death the community loses a most useful member. Surviving are her husband and daughter, Miss Minnie Drake. Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon by Revs. R. C. Love and W. C. Hayes, in the presence of a large congregation of friends, and interment followed in Evergreen cemetery.

There will be a general test of the supposedly unlucky number, 13, at this term of circuit court, which convened Monday, the 13th, in the year '13, and there were 13 prisoners in jail, charged with various offences, who are to be tried this term. You may not believe in the hoodoo number, but it is in this instance most likely to prove unlucky to some one.

Stage an Exception.
Cyril Scott tells of a dinner he once attended at which Edwin Booth was the guest of honor. Mr. Booth was called out for a speech.
"What shall I speak off?" he asked.
He was a quiet man and hated speech-making.
"Oh, just tell us about the stage; something about the theater," someone said.

Booth laughed. "If you want to know about finance, ask a banker. But if you want to know anything about the stage, ask the barber or the hotel clerk—anyone except an actor."

The Missing Adjunct.
There was a very disagreeable wait at the Muggleton's wedding last evening. The bride was in tears, the bridegroom's collar melted, the pastor fell asleep in his study and the organist played, "Oh, Promise Me," eleven times.

"What in the world was the trouble?"

"Why, the moving picture man's auto struck a fire hydrant and his whole outfit went to smash."

Afie in the Distance.
"I shall find a lofty position in distinction public affairs," said the young man who is learning politics.

"That's right, son," replied Senator Sorgum. "Only don't soar so high into the empyreal that you are like an albatross and the only impression people get of you is a small spot and a buzz."

Jackson—So your grandfather lived to be ninety years old, eh? Did he retain possession of his faculties until the end?

Jackson—Can't say. His will hasn't been read as yet.

A Noble Character.

That don't belong to him,
Deserves to dwell in heaven

Country Girl of Nowadays.
"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"

"I'm goin' a-milking, sir," she said, "and I'm also pretty and I'm only eighteen. I'm just a country girl. I've never been to the city and I know what numbers are. And if there's anything more you'd like to know just ask me."—Sister.

Human Chronometer.
The doting mother was telling the bachelor uncle about the wonderful baby.

"George is so regular in his habits," she said. "He wakes up crying at exactly 12 o'clock every night."

"A fine fawn," said the bachelor uncle.

Black Hand Methods.
"I received a letter from a trust magnate today," said the manager of the campaign fund.

"What does he want?"

"Wants to contribute. Says he has hidden $5,000 in a hollow tree, and demands that we go and get it."

rheumatism. I was in the hospital

well as ever." J.H. SANDERS,

Few medicines are of any benefit for rheumatism, but Mr. Sanders tells plainly what Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine did for it. One ounce of salicylate of soda added to one bottle of Nervine makes an excellent remedy for rheumatism, which is now known to be a nervous disease and therefore subject to the influence of a medicine that acts through the nerves, as does

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Hypogastria, Hepatitis, Gastritis, Colitis, etc., just as we think of symptoms, or of certain species of nervousness—nervousness, etc.

Herbalists have not correctly told us that the most popular stomach remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—contains not that original and highly vital principle, but only the accomplishments of another, Dr. Hall.
For some time past, however, in view of the boastful and shallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it will do and will do. We sell and liver powder, with a larger sale than all others combined.
